We Are Central

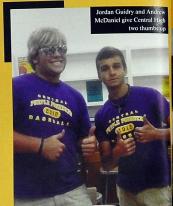

Central is diverse

Central is strong

"We Are Central" is not just a slogan, it is not one person, and we are not just a place that we have to come to each day. We are a group of unique people who are all trying to make our mark. The pages of our yearbook, The Champion, will tell, through pictures and stories, who we are going to become. However, we will always be Central!

Representing our School

Mr. King, our Principal, is a 1983 graduate of Central High School. He says Central influenced his future decisions by teaching him how to get along with other people. It allowed him to see other options that were available for career choices. Mr. King plans to continue to raise Central's graduation rate and provide a safe and positive learning environment. "My relationship with the students is very positive and they know that I care for them and want them to be successful. I think I'm very involved."

"We re going from good to great"

Principal Finley King

Interview

When asked to describe Central in one word, Mr. King answered, "Family, because I feel like the students and teachers have a concern for each other that extends far beyond the classroom." His response to having a positive influence on the school was," I hope my influence is positive. I think the students know I care

Mr. King works tirelessly to promote our school.

During Mr. King's first year as principal, he introduced our school to our new mascot, Stan-the-Pounder Man. Stan has instilled pride in our school, and brought our school's spirit up to a collegiate level.

In 1910, Central High School started a school newspaper that was widely adored by students, with each page filled with school spirit and pride. However, its popularity eventually died down and the school newspaper was lost after many successful years of publication. With the slogan "Honor is Synonymous with Central Spirit," the Digest was reborn in the fall of 2012 as an online news source.

"I'm in drama club and I believe it has helped me by branching out and becoming more outspoken. It has also helped me come out of my shell. I looked at drama club as a way to be involved at Central."

Endiya Rice (10)

"FCA has influenced my decisions and reminds me to do the right thing. I grew up going to church, and I don't have much time to go anymore because of sports, which makes FCA convenient. I like that we are not pressured and everything is explained well."

Lexie Ainslie(9)

"Skills USA has taught me leadership. Mr. Bright told me about all of the benefits it offered, which is why I joined. I got a scholarship because of it, and I like that you can do any skill and get recognized for it."

Blake Ragsdale (11)

"FCCLA has given me the chance to give more respect to the community. I have gotten the chance to meet more people. I wanted to help the community because I like giving back."

Michael Dixson (9)

"Humanities has helped me by discussing topics that teens don't like to talk about. I wanted to join because I took one of Mr. Daum's classes. I like the topics; it is entertaining and expands the brain."

Jace Phillips (12)

"The Ruriteen club showed me how helping others can benefit others, and it's necessary as a community. I joined because I wanted to find a club to lead. I like all the different projects and the big picture."
