The Greater Central

ENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL has for many years been a center of interest among the educational institutions of this section, because of the large territory from which the student body is drawn. Her widespread influence, combined with the enthusiasm of her students and alumni, has focused the interest of the entire city and even of the state on her progress.

The school was established in the central section of the present building in 1908, with a faculty of nine and a student body of ninety-eight. In spite of the slight check caused by the great war, the growth of the school has been rapid.

In 1921, when Mr. S. E. Nelson became principal, Central was a school of nine hundred sixty-two students, with a faculty of twenty-eight. A gymnasium and manual arts building had been added to the original structure. The printing press, which was the first to be installed in a high school in this section, was another feature of which the school was very proud.

When Mr. S. E. Nelson came to Central, he had behind him an impressive record in school work. Before him was a task that would mean far greater achievement. Each year since he became principal some dream of progress has been fulfilled, until today Central is the largest county high school in Tennessee, with a record in scholarship, progressiveness, and ideals second to none.

The splendid spirit of co-operation between the principal, the faculty, students, and alumni has been one of the main factors in the unusual success of the school.

Material evidence of growth is the spacious auditorium, the new wing for the Commercial and Science Departments, the Central Bank, the Bookstore, the Automobile Paint and Repair Shop, and the office of the Central Digest, the weekly school paper. An evidence of the general recognition of the high standing of the school is the acceptance of credits in universities from Dartmouth in the East to Southern California in the West. The trophies, banners, and cups testify our prowess in athletics.

Such achievements have required much work, and an ordinary man would probably be content to rest, well satisfied with the progress already made, but Mr. Nelson is entering upon future plans for a greater Central, with the same spirit and faith that has already accomplished

The next improvement hoped for is a new gymnasium to replace the old one, which has become inadequate for the athletic activities in which Central takes part. This will undoubtedly be built within the next few years.

The library is gradually outgrowing the room in which it has been housed for several years. Many new volumes have been added recently. The hope is that a date not far in the future will find in the building a large library room, well lighted, comfortably and adequately equipped to meet the needs of the constantly increasing student body.

Beyond those already mentioned are hopes for future developments based on the fact that since so much has been accomplished much more can be done.

Although the curriculum is one of the most inclusive and liberal in the state in the courses which it offers, there are still needs to be met. In addition to courses along commercial, scientific, lingual, musical, dramatic, and college preparatory lines, there is an outstanding demand for similar courses in journalism and art.

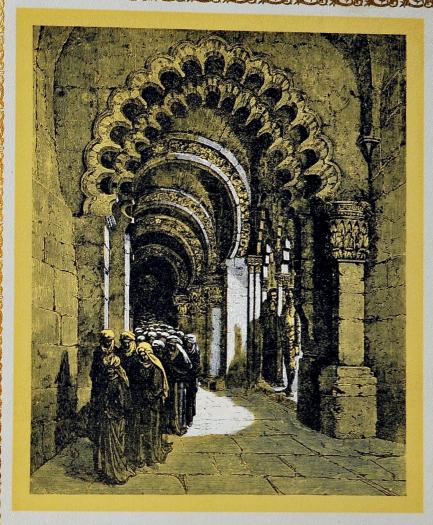

In addition to an expanding curriculum, Centralites dream of a greater building—a place where every department may have its own equipment and classrooms. Judging from the rapidly growing student body, this dream may become a reality in the not far distant future.

Another hope for the greater Central is that of a more extensive athletic program. With a new gymnasium in the near future, certainly it would not be improbable to see on the horizon of the future a promise of a splendid athletic field, tennis courts and an even greater staff of coaches and instructors.

Above all her dreams Central welcomes the idea of a constantly growing Central spirit—that of co-operation, which has already worked to overcome difficulties and to lead on toward

With the splendid record of the past and the promise of an even greater future, may not the students of Central High School be proud of the honor of graduation from such an institution?

THE CHAMPION

Four-Year Honor Students

THELMA BAUMGARTNER EDNA STAMPS ALMA UNDERWOOD

EDITH WOODARD MAYBELLE TAYLOR RUTH MARTIN EVELYN CHAMBERS RUTH MYLIUS

Of all the honors conferred upon students of Central, none is greater than that of being a Four-Year Honor Student. This is a most enviable attainment, for it designates consistent effort, unceasing perseverance as well as ability on the part of the winner.

The requirements for recognition as a Four-Year Honor Student are fifty "A's," no "F's" or "D's," with a conduct grade of "A." In addition to the scholastic requirements, the student must have taken part in school activities and must be of high moral standing.

Commencement Speakers

"Honor to whom honor is due." The distribution of honors and medals at the end of the scholastic year is a time anxiously awaited by Central students. The culmination of the graduation exercises come on the graduation evening, when for the last time the class appears as a whole.

No more enviable honor can be conferred upon a student than that of valedictorian. This person is chosen from the Four-Year Honor Students. The happy choice of the class this year fell upon Edith Woodard, who has not only applied herself in her class work, but has used her influence for the promotion of Central's best interest.

Her ability in leadership has been seen in the capacity of president of the Girls' Patrol and president of the Girls' Hi-Y Club.

Her valedictory address, "Living Memorials," contained beautifully expressed sentiment, and was a fitting close to the commencement program.

The selection of Maybelle Taylor as salutatorian was a wise one. In addition to the honor of being one of the Four-Year Honor Students, she has the distinction of having accumulated sixty-six "A's," the highest number made by any member of the Senior Class. Her work in the Commercial Department has been outstanding. She was an able member of the Central Digest business staff of 1927. In her salutatory address, "The Spur to Achievement," she again gave evidence of her ability.

Probably no boy in the Senior Class has taken a more active part in school activities during his senior year than Reed Gardner.

In addition to bearing the responsibility as editor-in-chief of the 1927 CHAMPION, he has taken a leading part in dramatics, and has served as vice-president of the Boys' Hi-Y Club. His ability has been so outstanding in the Public Speaking Course that he was chosen to represent Central at Knoxville in the extemporaneous speaking contest.

His popularity with the faculty is seen in the choice of him as faculty representative. After his excellent address on China, no one doubts the wisdom of the choice.

The popularity of George McInturff in his class was most convincingly shown by the unusually large vote which was given him for class representative.

He has been an outstanding student, not only in athletics as captain of both football and baseball teams, but he has served most efficiently as president of the Class of 1927 and as president of the Boys' Hi-Y Club. His work in the Lettermen's Club has been most commendable.

In his address, "American Imperialism," in his same honest, convincing way he defended the position which seemed to him right and reasonable.

It is with love, hope, and great expectations that Central follows the Commencement Speak-LOUISE BRANTLEY. ers of 1927. EDWARD MITCHELL.

The Class of 1927

COMPLETE history of the Class of 1927 through its entire four years would be one typified by periods of sunshiny days of smooth sailing, with not a few dark days of rough tossing on a stormy sea. The details of such a history are numerous and interesting to only a few, so here no attempt will be made to give them all.

In September, 1923, when about four hundred youngsters, fresh from grammar school graduation, entered the walls of Central High—that school which was to become so dear to them—there was a sense of disappointment experienced in seeing that no one marvelled at the remarkable class now starting on its four-year course. We felt we were unusual, although the fact at that time passed unnoticed, for we had to prove ourselves. We heard that the spirit of this school was contagious, but coming from various schools and possessed with different attitudes toward such a question, we pondered over just what this spirit was. But at the close of the glorious football season we found that we unconsciously had that peculiar, intangible something so hard to describe, yet so keenly felt—the Central Spirit.

During these first days our difficulties were many, and all to a greater or less degree experienced "storms." In the midst of such days we were informed that we were to be guests at the annual sophomore-freshman party. This was a very happy occasion, when we met many people, enjoyed games, and learned that sophomores were not altogether our bitter foes.

Since all successful organizations must have officers, at our first class meeting we chose as our leaders for the year: Jack Bradford, president; Lester Hunt, vice-president; George Liner, secretary, and George McInturf, treasurer. Much honor and crdit are due these students who so faithfully guided this ambitious class through its first struggling year, during which time an active part was taken in athletics, declamatory contests, societies, and plays. The close of the school year drew near, and we separated for the well-earned three months' vacation.

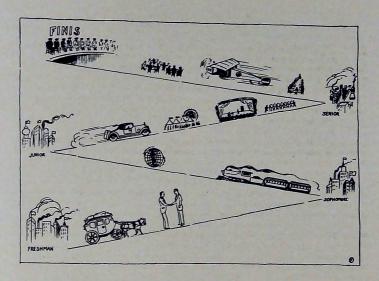

In 1924 we entered as sophomores, feeling ourselves exceedingly worldly wise from the experiences of the freshman year. Our self-importance was everywhere in evidence. In many cases it was difficult for our instructors to teach us, for we thought that we already knew much ourselves. This might be compared to that rather pitiable state of man where "he knoweth not that he knoweth not."

One of the main sources of strength in our class for the four years has been its splendid leadership. The officers selected for the sophomore year were: Arthur Hanson, president; William Rollins, vice-president; Raymond Alley, secretary, and Ruth Mylius, treasurer.

After the usual trials of the sophomore year, those of us who had successfully withstood these tests were classified as juniors.

What a joy to be juniors! We had thought if we could only reach this stage the battle would be almost won. Our leaders for this eventful year were William Rollins, president; Harry Adams, vice-president, and Edna Stamps, secretary and treasurer. Much to our delight we found this year to be different from the others. We began to realize more the importance of initiative and of doing things because it is the right thing to do. Now we entered more into school activities and found real joy in working together for our class and our school. Oh, what fun and yet what hard work it was getting ready for the carnival and for "ingamar," the junior play. Both of these events are still considered among the best of their kind ever given at Central. The banquet had its usual share of thrills and excitement for us all. This delightful occasion at the Country Club, where juniors were hosts to the seniors, was unique and filled with new experiences and pleasures. In the midst of the novelties of this year, toward its close began to dawn upon us the fact that the junior "knoweth that he knoweth not."

When the class again arrived at Central in September, 1926, their hearts were filled with new hopes and the realization that they were really seniors. The officers for this year were: George McInturf, president; William Rollins, vice-president; Edna Stamp, secretary and treasurer.

As each year like a day has dawned and has passed through the heat of the noontide on to the close, so here these years passed by, each more rapidly than the one before. As we see that the sun of our senior year is so near its setting, it is with a more serious feeling than ever that we realize the meaning of the words of the poet, "Nae man can tether time nor tide." Of all the years, undoubtedly our senior year has been the most delightful. Filled from beginning to end with hard work, new tasks and untried responsibilities, but all interspersed with friendliness and co-operation, we truly feel that it has all been worth the effort. It is with a peculiar feeling of fear, commingled with self-assurance and determination, that we now face the untried field of the future, where we must demonstrate what our high school days have meant to us by proving to the world that the Central graduate "knoweth that he knoweth."

SENIOR PARTY

The Senior Party of the year 1927 was given November 12 at the school building, which was attractively decorated in purple and gold. There was a series of entertainments in different rooms. Each student was given a program and attended each performance in groups. These entertainments were called "Cave of the Winds," "Fruit Basket," "Nuts Bag," and "The Flower Wedding." Later a program was given in the auditorium, after which the students retired to the cafeteria for refreshments. Each person had been given a little booklet for autographs and each kept his as a cherished souvenir of one of the most joyful events in his school life at Central.

THE SENIOR PLAY

A large audience witnessed a very creditable performance of "Twelfth Night" at Central High School on Friday evening. Dec. 11. It has been the curtom for the Senior Class to present a Shakespearean play each year. In the estimation of many, the selection and production of "Twelfth Night," both in staging and lighting effects, as well as in other artistic requirements, eclipsed all former efforts.

It is no small thing for high school students to present a Shakespearean drama, and the cast of "Twelfth Night" deserved the honor they received for their good acting and splendid interpretation

THE JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET

The Senior Class of '27 was very fortunate in being the first class to be entertained in the Crystal Ball Room of the Read House.

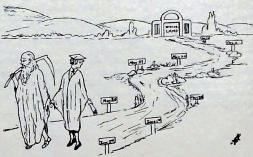

The Junior-Senior banquet is always a delightful event, both for students and the faculty. It is the last time the juniors pay tribute to the seniors, and is a crowning event in the friendships of the Junior and Senior Classes.

CLASS SERMON

The class sermon of the Class of '27 was preached by Dr. Homer W. Carpenter at the First Christian Church, May 29. It is an annual event and a time-honored custom which serves as one of the parting admonitions to the class. This year the sermon was unusually convincing and interesting.

THE SENIOR PICNIC

The senior picnic is the great outdoor occasion of Senior Week. On the morning of May 30, the seniors left by way of trucks and busses for the North Chickamauga Creek. No more delightful place could be found for such an event.

At the close of the day seniors expressed their appreciation of the day as another bond for binding the class more closely together.

CLASS DAY

The Class Day program was one of the prettiest events featured in the graduation exercises. The decorations were carried out in the idea of a flower garden.

A very important feature of the program was the presentation of the gift to the school from the Senior Class.

Friendship

As I sit alone in the twilight, Just at the close of day, Memories like enchanting spirits Hover along my way.

O Time, I earnestly beg
That my wish may granted be;
Turn gently backward in your flight
To nineteen hundred twenty-three.

There, in memory's sacred chamber, Guarded by spirits rare and true, I find like jewels in beautiful setting, Friendships formed of rarest hue. Some are like amber, rich and golden; Some like sapphire of truest blue; Others clear crystal like the diamond, Cut and polished by me and by you.

These friendships are my jewels, Precious and priceless to behold. I shall guard and keep them always, As rich perfume of the soul.

No longer now on trial,

Full well the test they've stood,
And now in twenty-seven

We call them genuinely good.

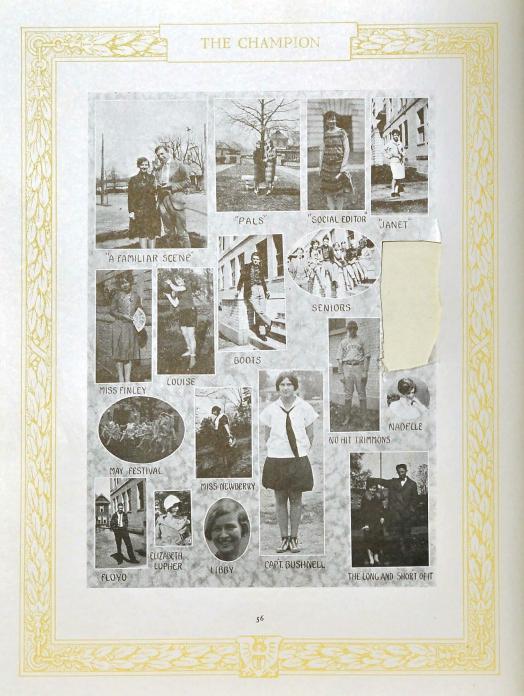

Oh, Central, our foster-mother,

How grateful to thee we feel,

For all thy gifts so precious,

All praise for these friendships like steel.

Junior Land

ROM the land of Sophomores, we, a band of happy adventurers, set forth gaily and, in September, 1926, triumphantly entered the fields of our ambition—Junior Land. To make our sojourn here successful, we recognized the need of wise leaders, and, knowing none better than those who had led us safely through the perilous passes of Freshman and Sophomore, we again elected Eugene Mayer, president, and John Waller, treasurer. Mary Helen Richardson was transferred from the vicepresidency of sophomore days to the junior secretaryship. And Howard Anderson was elected first assistant to the president. Then we set forth on our pilgrimage, confident of overcoming all difficulties and winning many laurels.

In our expectation of success we were not disappointed. The first event of the season which tested our ability to uphold the tradition of the Junior Class was the Junior Carnival. On the school lawn the tent attractions drew the crowds as usual; and in the auditorium the entertainment, consisting of athletic demonstrations, music, a playlet, and a mock representation of the faculty, created much mirth. The climax of the evening's entertainment was the crowning of Central's Carnival Queen, who was Ora Grey Whiting, a member of the Junior Class.

In pep meetings and on the athletic field Central rooters gaily waved caps and pon-pons of junior manufacture; a junior cheer leader, Charles Jackson, led the yells, and a junior accompanist, Evelyn Wood, played the piano. No wonder the juniors were especially enthusiastic and were able to supply their school's football team with such invaluable aids as Underwood, Mayer, Key, Donald Jones, Ed Peterson, Timmons, Anderson, Waller, and several others.

After the Christmas holidays came the annual junior play, "The Goose Hangs High," a modern Comedy by Lewis Beach, was selected and afforded ample opportunity for the display of the dramatic talent of the class. Jack Sherman and Gladys Hickey played leading roles as Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Ingals. Both were mature parts, and the way in which the characters were portrayed reflected especial credit upon high school students. The Ingals children, a lively bunch of youngsters, were played by Ella Maud Brown, Charles Jackson, and Eugene Welch. Ora Grey Whiting took the ingenue lead. The foremost character role was that of Granny, played by Dorothy Hays. Other parts were taken by Marie Dowd, Katherine Bonds, Pel'iam Wright, Howard Anderson, Mark Reynolds, and John Sweets.

In March came the annual declamatory and reading contest, and the juniors, with Mildred Taylor and John Ramsey as representatives, won both. Not only at Central did Mildred prove that a junior could win, but in the contest among the schools of the entire city she proved that she was entitled to the laurels of the victor. In the oratorical contest, held at Central in April, Helen Cornelia McClure was the junior representative and ran the senior winner a close second.

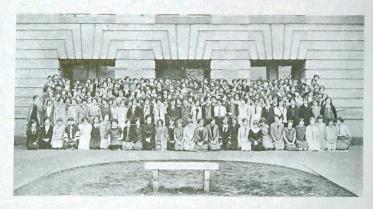

A new honor came to the Junior Class with the annual May festival, for Central's May queen was Jane Boyd, chosen during her sophomore year as the most graceful of the school's dancers.

Sojourners in Junior Land have indeed found it a happy and a pleasant place. If at times burdens proved a bit heavy, welcome relief was afforded by the conductor of the "Bus Line" of the Central Digest. Now, as we approach the boundaries of that new and unexplored territory, Senior Land, our eyes are turning toward the final milestone of our journey—the junior-senior banquet. Without a doubt the success which has been attendant upon all the other junior ventures will again follow upon our efforts and form a part of the happy memories which we shall take with us from Junior Land.

shout, "Don't call me a fish! I can't help it! I'll . . !"—but the rest of the words as they hurried out were so inaudible that his mother, coming from the kitchen, could not understand them.

"Bless his heart! He's having a bad dream," she remarked, as she looked through the door.

"Now I wonder what is bothering him?" his mother asked of no one in particular.

If she had been a mind reader she would have seen a miniature election, a duplicate of the freshman election of '26, taking place in Johnny's brain.

"My, but this ice cream is good! How about some more?"

"I wonder what has given him indigestion," his mother remarked. "He must have eaten some pickles." But it wasn't pickles this time. Johnny was remembering the refreshments at the Freshman-Sophomore Class party.

"Bradford, rah! Fifteen for Hammond!" His mother did not know it, but Johnny was dreaming of another election, this time for a wiser and more sophisticated group.

"Bradford, hit that line! Come on, Seagle! Let's have a touchdown, you Hammond!"

"He's studying too hard, poor little fellow. I'll have to see his teacher about this." His mother was becoming distressed.

"Watch that fish eat! Watch him! That's ten cakes for him!"

"I wonder if he's eaten all the cookies? I did want some for dinner"—and Mrs. Watson, much alarmed, made her way toward the pantry.

"Doesn't Frances look like a Jap?"

"Tra! La! La! I'll tell you, boys."

"Wilma and Flora Mae surely can sing." Johnny was again seeing his classmates take part in the operetta.

After this outburst, Johnny seemed to sleep peacefully. Suddenly he straightened in his chair and said with oratorical eloquence, "Give me liberty or give me death!"

"Why, he is dreaming about those declamations! Poor boy! It took him so long to learn one," his mother said as she hurried back from investigating the contents of the cookie jar.

"Let's go, Bradford! Come on, McCarty! Make that basket, Hammond!"

Johnny stretched long arms and legs and rubbed sleepy eyes.

"Ho! Hum! That was a peach of a dream. I surely would like to live that over again."

"Live what over again?" mumbled his mother, busy searching for her needle.

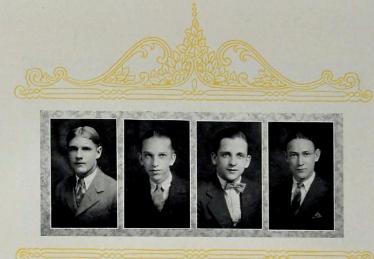

"My freshman and sophomore years at Central."

"It seems you'd be proud of being a junior," she remarked, "for there will be good times next year, too."

"Oh, you're right, mother, always. Anyway, there'd be those awful lessons to do all over again."

A Diary

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 23, 2107.

Dear Betty: Just recently we have moved to the old home of my great-great-grandfather, which is to me a most fascinating place. Grandmother has told me so many interesting things which happened to her here and which she used to do as a little girl, that almost every spot, every nook and corner have some happy association. Only yesterday I was on one of my investigating expeditions in the attic, and what do you imagine I found? In one corner in a rather inconspicuous spot is an old desk which appeared not to have been opened for years. I was very much thrilled as I took from the different places letters written more than a hundred years ago, My curiosity grew keener when suddenly I discovered a secret drawer. With some difficulty I opened it. Inside was only one book. Imagine my excitement when I saw the word "Diary," and the name of my great-grandmother, of whom grandmother had so often told me stories. As I turned the pages rather hurriedly to see just what was there, I found a brief record of her first year at Central High School. I could hardly wait to read it and see the comparison with our own high school days. Since I remember how much you enjoy old records and letters, perhaps sometime you might like to see the complete diary. I am sending you a copy of the record of certain days.

September 10, 1927.

Dear Diary: We began school today. It all seemed very strange and confused to me, but I soon discovered that teachers and the older students were glad to direct us to our rooms. There is a new wing under construction on the north side of the building. All day a continuous noise of the hammer and the saw was heard. For about a month the seniors and juniors will go to school one-half of the day and sophomores and freshmen the other half. I've enjoyed the day, for everything seemed so novel to me; even the noise was something different.

Dear Diary: Today we had our first class meeting, which was very interesting. We chose the following members as officers: Wilbur Peterson, president; Ernest Horton, vice-president; John Starr, secretary, and Buford Magee, treasurer. After the election the officers responded with short speeches. One of our members then led in some yells. Of all the yells, I like best the one where we spell "Central."

Dear Diary: I think the most exciting time of high school life is during the football season. The victory over Tech High was most thrilling. We have the team and the coaches this year. Not one game have we lost so far! But when we play that game with City High, we are going to win the great victory that we look forward to from year to year.

Dear Diary: I did not meet you at the appointed time last night, for I was late. The sophomores entertained the freshmen, and such a delightful time we had. The initiation of the freshman officers was the most amusing part of the program. I think ice cream and peanuts never were better than those we had last night. I feel that I know so many more people than in the beginning of the year.

November 10, 1927.

Dear Diary: We have begun our regular schedule with the full day program. The new building is completed and opened. The Home Economics, the Commercial and the Science departments opened their doors to visitors this afternoon. Everything was quite fertive and partylike. I guessed at the weight of Mr. Nelson's name, but have little hopes of winning the prize. I shall keep my little glass tube as a souvenir.

November 29, 1927.

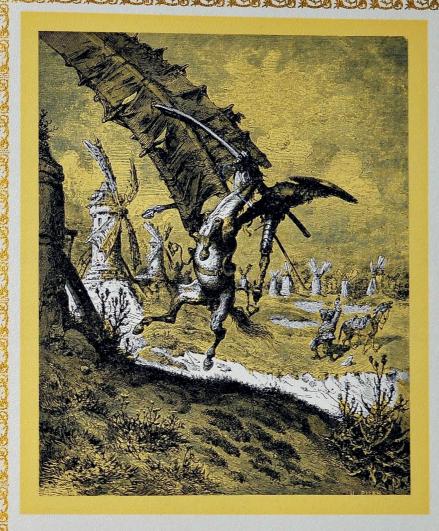

Dear Diary: Oh, that memorable Saturday after Thanksgiving! Glory to old Central, she won! The grandstand, literally packed with Central rooters, like one great mass of purple and gold, almost rocked with our yells and songs. Although Central gained in first three quarters, the latter part was a hard-fought struggle. We had a joy meeting today, when the boys of the team and coaches were presented with beautiful yellow chrysanthemums tied with purple tulle.

April 22, 1927.

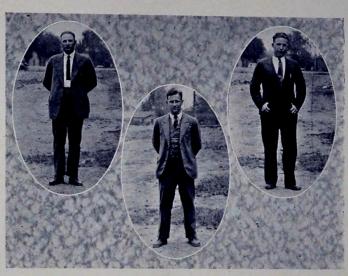

Dear Diary: This was the day for the Spring Festival. One would never have known it was spring from today. Had I not been afraid 1'd miss a day and maybe have to take exams, I believe I would have stayed at home. I think I've never felt a colder day in April. I am glad now that I went, for once more I am proud that I go to Central. Central, with her band leading, formed the main part of the parade. The pageant where the girls danced was beautiful. The freshman girls played an important part in the pageant.

P.S. Betty, dear, with this the record of the first year of high school ends rather abruptly. It seems that just here the diary was misplaced, for later on the fact is mentioned in another record that it has been found. Doesn't it sound quaint and old-fashioned to hear how they did so long ago in 1927? Only we can know just how different things are now in these more modern times.

ATHLETICS

BALES

SETTLIFFE

The Coaches

PETERSEN

Coach Petersen knows Central thoroughly. When he came to Central from Auburn in 1925, to act as director of athletics and football coach, he was no stranger in our midst. He was returning to ground he knew well, to a squad with whom he had fought in his high school days, and to a field on which he had starred.

To Coach Peterson is due the gratitude of the entire student body as well as much of the glory for the splendid athletic record of the past year.

His love for fair plux, his belief in clean sportsmanship and his gentlemanly manner have won for him the strong admiration not only of his team but of all who know him. Under his directorship the football team won the first clear-out champlonship since 1913. Central defeated Baylor for the fast good a claim as any other team to state champlonship.

His conferers and all who have worked and played with him say unreservedly of him, "He is the best in the South."

Mr. Bales, the basketball and baseball coach at Central for five years, brought with him from Athens an enviable record in sports—a record which he has shown was rightly won. Considering the circumstances under which the basketball team labored, this year has been unusually successful. Central took second place in the city meet and later won a victory over the city champions in the state meet. Each year the light on the path to Chicago grows brighter and brighter. At present it seems most encouraging for next year, and the anticipation of the team is keen.

In athletics Mr. Bales has enthusiasm for fight which he inspires in his men. He teaches his men that it is not only their business to succeed, but to continue in good spirits in the face of failure. He is courteous, gentlemanly, sincere, and with it all knows the sports which he coaches.

SETTLIFFE

Jeff Settliffe, who is track coach and assistant football coach, came to Central for the first time in 1926. In the University of Chattanooga he was president of the Lettermen's Club and took an active part in all sports.

The year that Mr. Settliffe has been in Central he has entered heart and soul into athi-tics. This year's football record owes much to him for his inspiration of clean play and fair fighting. Being a track man of ability in his school days his value are his too to be over stimated. Being cliffe makes the trio of what is considered one of the finest high school coaching staffs in

Managers

BALLINGER

As manager of basketball and football, "Bill" performed his duties so well that he was awarded his letter. He worked hard not only in looking after the financial affairs, but behind the line during the games he gave encouragement and ministered to physical needs of the team.

Bob is one of the most enthusiastic track men in Central. He is not only a real runner himself, but he knows how to "run" the team. The season under his management has been a very successful one.

MORGAN

James is not only one of Central's well-known football men, but he is one of the best baseball managers Central has ever had. He has shown special interest in every game. His services in managing the Baylor-Central game deserve special recognition.

Captains

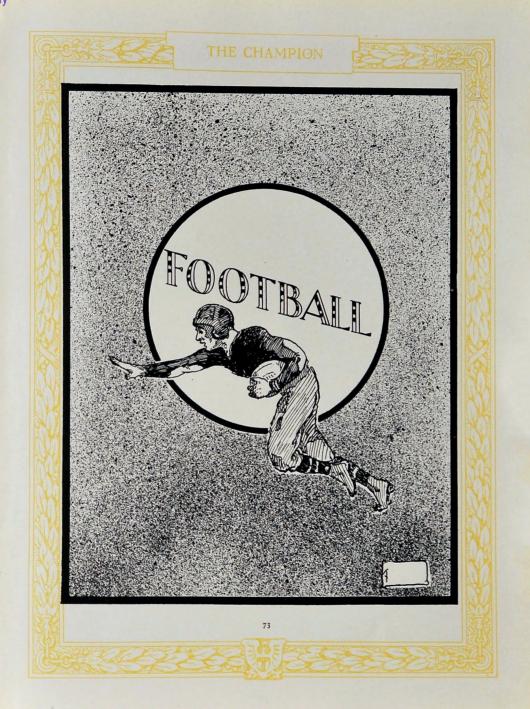

McINTURF

McInturf is one of the best captains Central has ever had. He has that "never-give-up" spirit, with which he so inspired his football team that not one game did they lose on the season schedule. To his spiendid football reputation George added a spiendid record as captain of the baseball team. Central will always be proud of McInturf for his clean sportsmanship and the great victories which his teams leave behind.

CADE

Cade has been a basketball enthusiast since he has been at Central. He puts "pep" into the team and almost invariably leads them to victory. On the basketball squad Cade leaves a vacancy which will be hard to fill.

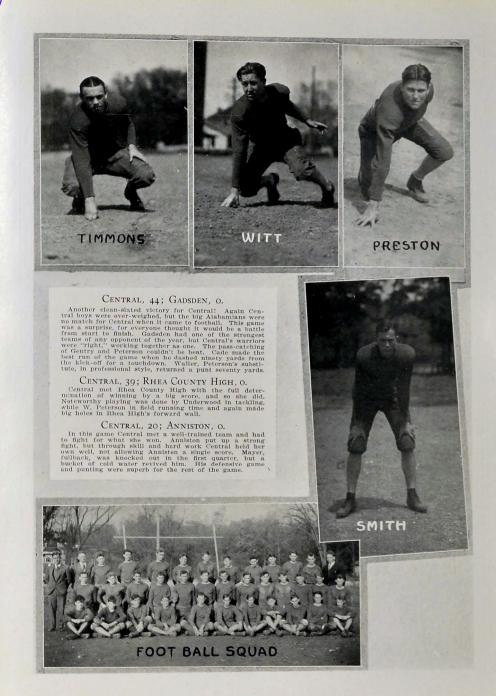

As cheer leader and captain of track, Jackson is well known in athletics at Central. Bubbling over with enthusiasm, he has cheered our teams on to many victories. As captain of track he has helped develop one of the best track teams Central has had in many years.

Football Season, 1926

CENTRAL, 7; PHILLIPS HIGH, 7.

This game was played under the handicap of bad weather and a heavier foe. Central's team showed team work far superior to Phillips' team, who out-weighed them twenty pounds to the man. Although fighting against odds, yet never forgetting the institution they were representing, the determined players of Central put up the most rugged fight ever witnessed at Rockwood Park.

Although Central outplayed the opponent for three quarters and a part of the fourth, Ill fate was against them. With only two miuutes to play, a forward pass was completed for sixty yards, placing the ball on Central's one-yard line. In spite of the fact that Central fought with untold energy on the fourth down, a Phillips man sneaked over for a touchdown, The game ended in a tie, 7 to 7. Neither was victor; neither was defeated.

CENTRAL, 19; CITY, O.

Central-City game was the grand finale of the season. The Maroon and White came to Chamberlain Field thoroughly determined to blot Central's unspoiled record. Central was equally determined to bring that record away un-changed except for an added victory.

This game was witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever seen on Chamberlain Field. As soon as the game was under way the superiority of the Purple and Gold was an established fact. Mayer, in his defensive work, was good. Key did a splendid bit of open field running, which resulted in two touchdowns. The Central line did some of the best tackling and blocking of the entire season. The work of Tate, McInurf. Bradford, Gentry, Jones, Underwood, and Seasle, supported by the entire team, made this one of Central's best games of the schedule.

Thus closed one of the greatest football seasons Central has ever known. The only other team in the South which could contest with High, whose team went down in defeat in her Thanksgiving game, while Central's record was still that of "undefeated."

Central is headed toward one of the best baseball seasons in many years. With the exception of one game, which was lost to Baylor by a score of five to three, Central has been victorious. This season marks the closing careers of McInturf and Cade, whose names have been synonymous with baseball at Central for four years. Although the work of Keys, Cade, Mayer, and Timmons has been outstanding, it is realized that their success has been due largely to the splendid support of every other member of the team.

Track Season of 1927

With the participation of a large squad and the inspiring direction of Coach Settliffe, the track season of 1927 has been a successful one.

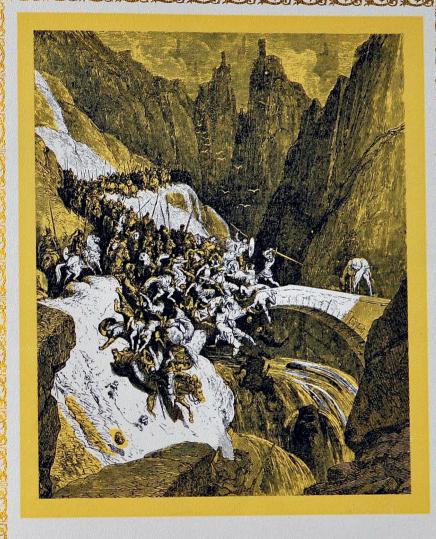

The first dual meet was held with City High. Both teams were well matched and competition was keen. Both squads put up a good fight, while City eventually slipped over with a five-point victory. The score was 45-49.

In the Baylor relays Central took part in several events and made a good record.

One of the most interesting events of the season happened on April twnty-ninth, when the Central squad journeyed to Sewanee to attend the Southern Prep School Meet. This was Central's first opportunity to show her real mettle. Of the eleven events in the finals, Central qualified for nine. "Skeet" Mayer won for himself the distinction of breaking the Southern record in the shot-put with a heave of forty-five feet and one-half inch. Kermit Maxwell and Jackson, as deep and distance may made a groud show. dash and distance men, made a good show.

In the city meet, held at Baylor School, Friday, May 13, the Central team took second place.

MILITARY

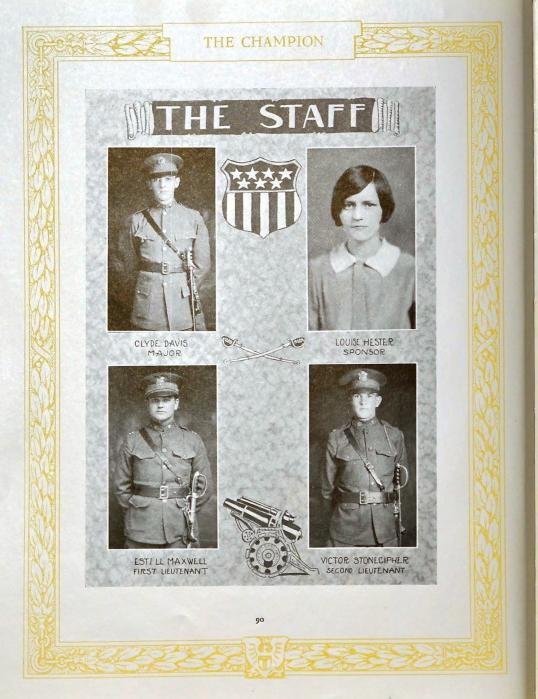

To CAPTAIN VAN DYKE OCHS

Because of his excellent service to and kindly interest in the members of the battalion and the whole school in its varied activities;

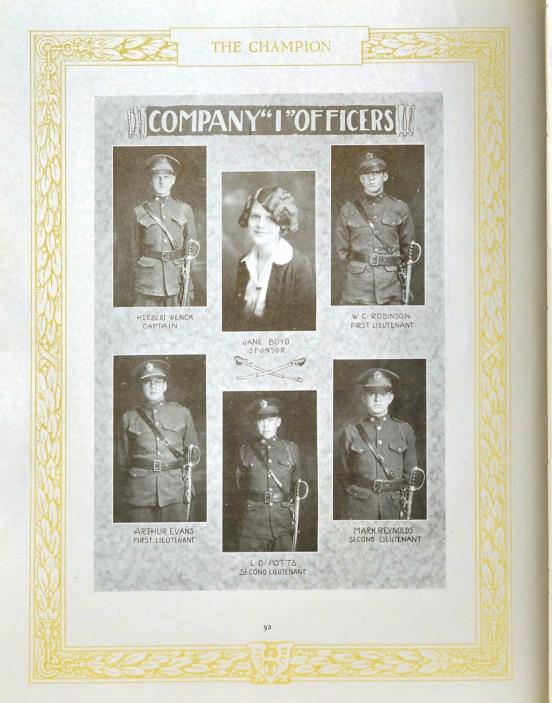

Because of the high esteem in which he is held by the Students, the Faculty, and the Alumni;

Regretting that his four year assignment to this station is at an end, and desiring to express our most sincere wishes for his success and happiness in the field to which he will go,

We, the R. O. T. C. of Central High, respectfully and lovingly dedicate the Military Section of the "Champion."

Inspection Every Friday at Central the weekly inspection takes place. After the battalion is formed by the Cadet Adjutant and presented to the Cadet Major it is then inspected by the Captain. Each week Captain Ochs selects one cadet from each company for his neatness in appearance and general bearing. Later those selected from the group are brought together and a prize is awarded to the outstanding man. This is one of the steps toward choosing officers for the next year. Following inspection, the formal ceremonies, consisting of battalion review, parade, and individual company drills, are held. Through these ceremonies, which are conducted with much skill and precision, the progress of the battalion is seen. To the military boy this day, which varies from the regular routine, is most interesting, and one to which he looks forward.

Central R. O. T. C. Battalion

INCE 1919, Central High School Battalion of the R. O. T. C. has been making steady progress, but not until the year 1927 has our effort so surely merited us the coveted rating by the United States Government as "Honor High School" of the Fourth Corps Area, which covers the Southland. At last our dreams, our hopes and our ambitions seem almost realized. The credit of this distinction is due primarily to our esteemed Principal, Mr. S. E. Nelson, our efficient Cadet Major Clyde E. Davis, and to Sergeant James Jones, and to the loyalty and conscientiousness of every officer and every man who were the Purple and Gold disc.

For six years the esprit de corps of the R. O. T. C. at Central has been reflected over Chattanooga. The Central cadet has always been an example of the typical red-blooded American youth—bright-eyed, alert, and ready to meet any emergency.

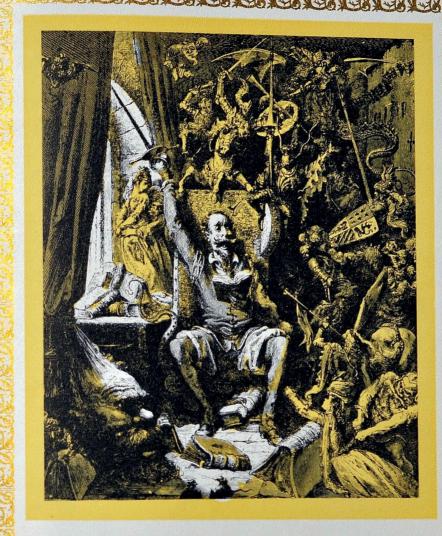

The unit is one of the best drilled and disciplined units of the R. O. T. C. in the country. It is the proud boast of the Professor of Military Science and Tactics that, in his four years of connection with the Central R. O. T. C., there has not occurred one serious breach of discipline, and never one word of disrespect or act of insubordination.

In reviewing this year's accomplishments it can be said that the R. O. T. C. of Central has taken its place in civic activities on more than one occasion. The unit has taken part in many patriotic parades and demonstrations. It has furnished guards and ushers at diffent times.

Mr. Guy Rubright, who has for two years been in charge of the band, has transformed what was considered a fair band, prior to his directorship, into one of the best high school bands in the South. This band has been a great asset not only to the school but to the city and county as well. It has always responded to requests for entertainments.

The R. O. T. C. has made no attempt to Prussianize or to make soldiers out of our youth. It abhors war, and leaves the making of soldiers to our regular army. The R. O. T. C. makes citizens, and one of the many obligations of citizenship is to be a soldier if it ever becomes necessary. The R. O. T. C. teaches leadership, team work, obedience, loyalty, courtesy and, last but not least, love of country. It sponsors love of the great outdoors, good sportsmanship, respect for constituted authority, and clean thinking, clean talking, and clean living. It aids the physically weak in building up a strong body through calisthenics and co-ordinating exercises; it corrects the discourteous, the careless, and slovenly boy and makes him courteous, neat and active, a good student, and an asset and a pride to his school and his community.

The Commercial Department of Central performs a very important function in the way of caring for the business transactions of the school. This year they have been especially favored with a new department, affording better facilities for work.

This department offers two excellent courses to students desiring a business education. The secretarial course turns out many efficient stenographers each year and the bookkeeping course is unexcelled.

Not only in the business world of Chattanooga, but in other cities as well, are found Central students who are doing excellent work.

The Rest Room

Just at the end of the corridor, where it is usually very dark, is the brightest little room, artistically furnished in blue and tan. It is suggestive of home with exquisite draperies and furnishings, its expressive pictures, and its cheerful flowers. Most homelike of all is the motherly advice and care with which Mrs. Mary D. Calles brings peace and happiness to all who enter here. This nook is the rendezvous of the sick, weary, and wounded. It is here that burdens are lessened or dropped, that smiles supplant tears, that high resolves show forth in the faces of those who come and go. From five to ten students seek the Rest Room each period for the comfort they are certain to receive.

Most cheerful and peaceful, this little room, Where is gathered all that is best Sought by the weary in body and soul, This dear little haven of rest.

Ministered to by a loving hand
Debarring the ogre of gloom;
Joy and happiness ever prevail,
Most loved of all, the Rest Room!

The Centralite

In the dear old halls of Central High, The school whose worth we verify, Are boys and girls of many types In whom even sages might delight: The witty, the thoughtful, the wise and gay, And others who patiently seek each day Truth-with effort unfailing, Wisdom-that they may know. Service-a love for others. Light-of unfailing glow. Yet while we name the many, The fickle, the constant, the sad: The graceful, sincere, and efficient, The simple, the stately, the glad, We like to think, as the days come around, And as time rushes on in its whirl. That there's the same love of right In every true Centralite-boy or girl.

Centralite

Capable Edna Stamps

"My children are my jewels,"
Said Cornelia of old,
So Central, like a mother,
With pride her gems beholds;
None does she prize more highly,
None more tenderly enfolds
Than Edna, her "Capable" child,
So tender, gentle, and mild.

Enthusiastic REECE CAMP

Pep's the motive power of our school,
Enthusiasm her most valued tool;
When we work, we work as one,
When we play we play for fun;
Oh, how funny we would sound
When our yells go round and round,
If on Camp we couldn't depend
To lead us straight and enthusiasm lend.

Natural EVELYN CHAMBERS

It's not because you are jolly,
Or seldom if ever blue;
It's not because your words
Are slow and never few;
It's not because you are pretty,
But of course we know that's true:
The reason why we love you
Is because you are you.

THE CHAMPION

Tactful REED GARDNER

Here's to our orator and actor, too!
It's almost incredible the things he has to do;
But he's not a shirker,
He's a real true worker,
Whose troubles are bubbles, whose task is a joy,
He meets each situation with such wisdom and perception,

That "most tactful" they dubbed him In the Centralite election.

Reliable, dependent, sincere, and fair, When he says "Yes," we know he'll be there; Not only behind the scene Does he work with his crew, But in the limelight outside He's sure his part to do. Call on "Boots," he's the one If you'd feel the work will be done.

Here's to George, our football star, In basketball he's famed afar; His skill at tennis none can deny, With him in baseball few can wie; In fact, our George is hard to beat, We call him our "all-round" athlete.

Loyal Edward Mitchell

Four long years you've held the hanner High and noble every foot; Four long years you've walked beside us, Never failed us, ne'er forsook. Now for all your strength and courage, For your sense of honor, too, We are proud to call you "loyal," Praise your friendship as true blue.

Industrious MARY GRAHAM

We envy you your patience,
And your perseverance, too;
We've never known you fail or falter
When you're given work to do.
"Industry's Fortune's right hand," they say;
Always at it wins the day.
Great things of you we are expecting,
Central's hopes in you are resting.

True James Morgan

In our days of high school pleasure, In our toil and in our leisure, We've had many a turn and twirl, We've met many a boy and girl; Some are simply those we know, Some ring true all through and through; In all this host of high school seniors, Of you they seem the surest, So decided to call you "truest."

THE CHAMPION

Excellent GEORGE McInture

It is with joy we honor thee, Whose record from short-comings is so free; You've set your standard high, we know, Your path with credit is aglow; "Excellent" expresses only in part All that we feel so deep in our heart, "Thou, in our wonder and astonishment, Hast built thyself a livelong monument."

Now should you like From us all One who would be a type, Just add us all together, And you'll be pretty nearly right.

RINGS ON THEIR FINGERS

Our team has rings on their fingers And bells on their toes; They're the best in Chattanooga, As everybody knows; So pile up the score, boys, While we yell for Central High! For Central, Central, Central High! Oh, my!

CHEER! CHEER!

Cheer, cheer! Here we are again To cheer old Central's name! Loyal ever to our school, We'll never let her honor wane. Fight! Fight! Fight! Her sons and daughters, ever true, Know what her spirit rare can do. And for her fame forever we will Fight for aye, for old Central High!

A CANNIBAL KING

A Cannibal King, with a big nose ring, Got struck on a Zulu maid, And every night, when the moon shone bright Across the canal he'd wade To hug and kiss this dusky miss, Out under the green-wood tree, And when they met they sang a duet That sounded like this to me-

Yackety, yackety, yackety, yack!

Brackety, brackety, brackety, brack! Yackety, brackety! Sis! Boom! Bah! Central! Central! Rah! Rah! Rah!

In the year 1921-22, when Mr. S. E. Nelson took over his duties as principal of Central High, he organized what is today one of the best known clubs of the school, the Lettermen's Club. The organization was formed at that time to prevent a person who had not earned a letter from wearing one.

The officers of the club for the first year were: George Lynch, president; Ernest Williams, vice-president; Billy Shadden, secretary-treasurer; Andrew Cope, sergeant-at-arms.

This club has grown from twenty members in the first year to thirty-three at present. To be a member of the Lettermen's Club, an athlete must earn his letter in one of the four sports—football, basketball, baseball, or track. After working hard for his letter, he becomes then a candidate for membership. Later he is carried through the initiation and admitted into

The Lettermen's Club of today not only prohibits non-lettermen from wearing the letter, but also tries to create a spirit of pride in achievement by making the members feel that they are working together as brothers for Central. The lettermen enjoy each year one or more social events, which help to keep them closer together. The club has always responded to calls for help in school activities and is always ready to aid the principal when their help is needed.

The Girls' Patrol was organized in 1925, with twenty members chosen from the Senior Class. Their duties were to clear the halls and direct students on the crowded stairs. This was necessary because of the dangerously overcrowded condition of the school before the new addition.

But now that we have the new wing, confused traffic conditions have been improved, and the duties of the patrol have changed. The girls are now endeavoring to aid in promoting the general welfare of the school. Co-operation between the faculty, students, and the patrol is a thing greatly desired.

These girls, chosen for outstanding character, executive ability, and tact, are organized as big sisters to all the lower classmen, and advisers and helpers to the whole student body.

"All for one and one for all."

For several years there has been at Central an Officers' Club, but never one which has shown more spirit and interest than ours. It is the purpose of this club at all times to work for the interest of the battalion, to promote those things which will lend life and enthusiasm to the military phase of our school life.

Whenever it has seemed wise, the social side of the club life has been encouraged by parties or such functions as will bring members together on a friendly basis.

One noteworthy achievement of the year was the presentation of "Pomander Walk," given April 29, in the high school auditorium, and directed by Mrs. Longley. Among other friends to whom is due much of the credit for the progress and success of the club are Mr. S. E. Nelson and Captain Ochs.

The Camera Club consists of a group of boys and girls who are interested in the taking and developing of pictures. The club has many hikes and campfire parties during the year. In the dark room the members of the club are given instruction in picture developing by laboratory method. The club fosters interest in different phases of school life by taking pictures at the plays and other activities.

THE ORCHESTRA

The orchestra has spent a year of efficient service to their Alma Mater. They furnished music for the plays, the parties, the minstrel, the operetta; in fact, for every school event. Their activities have not been limited, however, to the entertainments within the school. On many occasions have they played at other schools in the city and at different organizations' meetings. Central High School orchestra is well known throughout the city, and upholds splendidly the name of the school it represents.

The Varsity Glee Club has become a very important organization in Central High School. Their work for the year has been of a very creditable nature. They have furnished several chapel programs, and have had their part in furnishing the music for nearly every event in the school calendar. The big musical events of the year were sponsored by the group, and they were, in a great measure, responsible for the success of these performances.

"Miss Cherry Blossom"

This brilliant operetta was presented by the Music Department on the night of April 15. The setting was Japanese, and the plot was woven around the love affair of a Japanese maiden, called Cherry Blossom, and a young American. The two leading parts were played by Ora Grey Whiting and W. C. Robinson. Other important roles were interpreted by Wilma Planzer, Reed Gardner, Pilham Wright, Paul Overbay, Hampton Morgan, and Robert Talley. Choruses of Japanese geisha and American girls and men added greatly to the success of the performance with their attractive songs and dances.

The Minstrel

The Minstrel First Part was a rollicking comedy of plantation life in good old Dixie. The numerous comedy skits were cleverly interspersed with songs and dances of every type imaginable. Important Negro parts were played by George Cade, Skeet Mayer, George McInturf, Edward Morgan, Jack Sherman, Mabelle Stinson, Evelyn Chambers, Ed Brown, and Neal Peak. Reed Gardner acted the part of the plantation owner and interlocutor.

The Minstrel Second Part was a one-act musical comedy by the name of "Cynthia's Stutegy." The consent to the marriage of the daughter with her chosen lover is the center of the plot. The characters, the mother and the father, were cleverly interpreted by Evelyn Miller and Hampton Morgan. Ora Grey Whiting and W. C. Robinson played the roles of the daughter and her lover. Many choruses, and especially the boys' chorus masquerading as girls, made the production extremely interesting and colorful.

Central Public Speaking and Dramatic Classes

EDITH WOODARD

MARIE PARKS

Miss Bertha Russell, Adviser Azilee Johnston

For many years Central High School has had a high standing in Dramatics and Public Speaking. This has been witnessed by the large audiences that have attended the annual class plays and various contests, but for the first time in the history of the school we have this year an opportunity for students to study Public Speaking, Dramatics, and Expression as a special part of their curriculum.

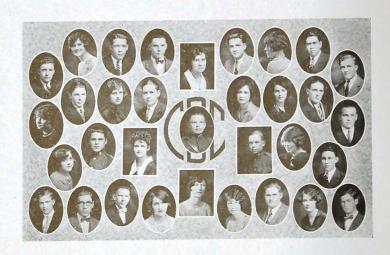

The work in this field is divided in such a way as to give each student an equal amount of time to devote to each of the three phases included. During the year a course in Public Speaking is given wherein a careful study of outlining, writing, and the delivery of the oration is required. The work in Dramatics consists of a study of one-act plays for class work, preparing the student for the understanding of drama, stage technique, and interpretation of literature. This year the plays produced in Public Speaking were: Tarkington's "The Ghost Story," Zona Gale's "The Neighbors," Elizabeth Gole's "Not Quite Such a Goose," and Rochwell's "Magda."

The work done in so-called Expression gives practice in breath control, voice projection, and the interpretation of the printed page.

The popularity of the course is shown by the fact that seventy students have enrolled during the first year it has been offered.

Although it was organized primarily as a literary society, the Dixie Society has always stood for old Southern courtesy and hospitality. Theirs has been a twofold aim, to sponsor the best in literature and life—a high and beautiful ideal which has guided the Dixie Society always and made it the largest society in our school today.

The greatest step toward the achievement of our aims has been the society programs. The literature discussed has included man these discussions there was the social hour, which has served to give a charm of maunit, greater social ease, and develop conversational ability, thus helping to make all-round. The programs have brought to Central an influence that programs are preparation for the programs have brought to Central an influence that programs have brought to Central an influence that programs have brought to Central an influence that programs are sufficient and preparation.

The programs have brought to Central an influence that promotes courtesy and kind feeling among the students. This is justly recognized as the Dixie spirit.

The Greek goddess Athena, for whom our society is named, was goddess of wisdom and patroness of arts. To understand the truth about things worth while, and to develop an appreciation of the beautiful is the lofty ideal which the Athenians consider worthy of their best efforts. Like every other organization of Central, it desires the co-operation of every student, and serves everyone who permits it to do so, for Athenians believe-

The Wellesley Society was organized in 1912 for the purpose of promoting interest in literature. The name was taken from Wellesley College, a college of high literary and moral standards.

The first sponsor of the society was Mrs. L. M. Russell, who did much to promote its interest and growth. The second sponsor was Miss Edna Cuerton, now Mrs. William Jacoway. It was through her efforts that the society was able to present the school with the Wellesley Bulletin

The Wellesley Society has always striven to aid in the promotion of any movement for the betterment of the school. This year an effort has been made to assist in a clean-up campaign in the corridors and study hall,

"Active in Service" is the aim of every member, with every member co-operating as one.

Since its organization in Central High School the purpose of the Euterpean Society has been to aid in the cultivation of an appreciation for good music.

The year book of the society this year was so arranged that an opportunity was afforded of learning something of the different composers of our sacred, folk, classical, and popular music. One of the outstanding features of the year's work was a musical program given in chapel on April the fifth, at which time officers of the Euterpean Society presided.

Silhouettes of life remind us We must make our outline, too; And departing leave behind us Shadows just like me and you.

You may fear for his future, but who could doubt his past? +++

Nurse: "Where are you? It is time to take your medicine.'

B. Anderson: "Yes, I know it. I'm in the bath tub; the directions say take this medicine in water." +++

Janet S.: "Say, did you hear about Paul Overbay's accident?"

E. Chambers: "Oh, no, what happened?" Janet S.: "They told me that he took his watch up stairs and the old thing ran down." + + +

When Louise Cox goes to bed, she puts an alarm clock underneath the pillow and sleeps between the ticks.

R. Workman: "What do they do in Germany when it rains?"

Miss Ingram: "I think I've never heard." R. Workman: "Just let it rain."

I'm just a careless school boy, My name is Ever Green, I saunter up and down the street Merely to be seen.

I'm very fond of pretty girls, And they so fond of me; So as I wander through the world I'm happy as can be. +++

Mr. Templeton (in geometry class): "Determine the value of a solid. You don't need a figure; use your head."

When the donkey saw the zebra He began to switch his tail; "Well, I never!" was the comment; There's a mule that's been in jail." +++

J. Morgan: "Say, Cade, have you been in Central all your life?" G. Cade: "No, not yet."

Two Is COMPANY In the parlor there were three-She, the parlor lamp, and he; Two is company, no doubt, So soon the little lamp went out.

+++ COMPARING EXPERIENCES

"London," said Miss Waples, "is undoubtedly the foggiest place in the world."

"Oh, no, I beg your pardon," said Mr. Rut-ledge. "Not that I'd like to argue, but I've been in a place much foggier than London." "Where is that?" asked Miss Waples.

"I don't know where it was," replied Mr. Rutledge, "it was so foggy."

+++ Talkative She: "Why are you always so silent? Say something, if you have to take it back."

Silent He: "It's better to be silent and be thought a fool than to talk and remove all Motor Cop: "So you saw the accident, sir?

Mr. Rankin: "Well, I'm afraid I've forgot-

De hoot owl said to de whipporwill, "You don't sing nuffin an' you won't keep

You ought to take notice dat it would be Polite to let folks listen to me."

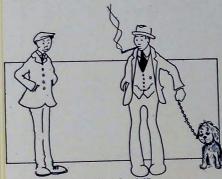

Says de whipporwill to de old hoot owl, "You sleeps all day an' at night you prowl, An' you shows your ign'unce all complete Interruptin' de music dat I make so sweet."

Now dat's de way wif man an' bird, Each thinks his voice should sure be heard; An' most of us ain' got much mo' skill Dan de old hoot owl an' de whipporwill.

G. McCullum: "Mr. Headrick, did you know girls are very much like 'cops'?" Mr. Headrick: "In my experience I believe I've never seen the resemblance. What is it?"

G. McCullum: "They give the sign to go and then the sign to stop.'

I shall pass through this world but once,

Any good therefore that I can do or any kindness that I can show to any human being,

Let me do it now.

Let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again.
